26. brief description (note unusual features, integrity, environment, threats and associated buildings)

This two-story, rectangular-shaped building is a Vernacular Commercial type. The 3-bay structure has a wood frame construction and the original wood weatherboard exterior finish. One small brick chimney projects from the interior side through the flat roof. Several types of sash windows appear in the building. Decorative elements include wood trim over the window, and door openings, wood panels beside the main entranceway, wood frieze board between the first and second story facades and wood corner brackets. The building's original appearance has been altered by the addition of the two-tiered veranda to the facade and enclosure of a side stairway to the second story.

This property is located in a Community Development Target Area and is zoned B-1, General Business

27. history, significance and/or background

Evidence from several historical maps indicates this building was constructed between 1876 and 1896 during Apollo Borough's greatest population growth period. A panoramic map, published in 1896, shows several commercial buildings on this block. This building housed a music store at this time. It appears on the map with a decorative cornice across the facade roofline. Two supporting corner brackets remain but the cornice has been removed and would require reconstruction. Removal of (over)
